

News Bot Reflection

When I first made the original one, it was a pretty difficult venture. So when I was given the task of building a second one for the final project, I was a bit worried. Looking back, while this one was more streamlined thanks to the first version, it still wasn't as easy.

The second iteration of the News Bot file was not as eventful as the first iteration. As while the first one was a rather difficult model to create, since the second News Bot is essentially a sequel to the first News Bot, it wasn't as intensive.

That said, it's not without its difficulties. The News Bot 2 lacked the same style as the first one, and it also lacked the visualizations that make the original easier to get through. Because of those difficulties and limitations, I made a second version of the News Bot 2 similar to how I made a second version of the original News Bot. Though after some time I managed to get it through.

Overall, while I'd say my experience with it was a lot different from when I made my first News Bot, this was still an energy-intensive, but honestly fun experience. And while the presentation of this bot could be better, I'd say that the whole experience was a great one.